For Gifts—Books

Books, of course. It's the one gift you can be absolutely sure about, even if your friend already has a book.

And, if books, good books. If good books, books that will mean more than a few hours' diversion—books that compliment the mental capacity of the recipient, and delicately imply a like capacity in the giver.

For instance:

Research Narratives: Prepared by ALFRED D. FLINN. Brief stories of invention, discovery and research, told for the most part by the "men who did it." Two volumes of them, each containing fifty narratives. Volume I, 50c. Volume II, $1.00

Mental Handicaps in Golf: By THEO. B. HYSLOP, golfer and medical man. Amusing—but calculated to help any golfer (with the possible exception of Mr. Robert Jones) improve his mental stance and his game. Looks "gifted" too with gold stamped cover on green silk. $1.50.

Tree Ancestors: By E. W. BERRY. So many people have trees. And this is a tree book that is "different"—it tells of the ancestry of our common tree stocks, a fascinating story of shifting habitat; how they come to be what they are and where they are. $3.00.

Fighters of Fate: By J. ARTHUR MYERS. Twenty-four sketches of famous people who have achieved greatly despite physical handicap. The normal inspiration that goes hand in hand with all biography is, therefore, given emphasis from a new angle. $3.00.

Five Years in Turkey: By LIMAN VON SANDERS. An historical document of first importance, telling "the other side" of the campaigns in Palestine and the Dardanelles. But in some respects the human document overshadows the historical interest. A prize for anyone interested in our own times. $3.50.

And Many Others. Send for a Check List of books suitable for Christmas remembrance—prepared to help you solve the knotty problem of giving gifts that count.
