Micrometer Ball Adapter

Accurate measurements of curved surfaces, tube walls and hole locations are assured with any standard micrometer fitted with this tiny adapter consisting of a steel ball held in the spherical cavity of a neoprene retainer. The steel ball is positioned to contact the object to be measured, and the adapter will slip over any micrometer anvil having a diameter of .235, .250, .257 or .270 mm.

Bacteria Growth Monitor

Pushbutton monitoring and recording of bacterial growth is provided by this instrument that measures transmission and scatter of light in quick succession. The readings are shown on a microphotometer digitally and are punched simultaneously on an IBM card for computer processing. The flexible system will accept any signal received by the photomultiplier tube, thus allowing a wide variety of information to be computerized.

Thermal Air Bath Gun

A continuous stream of constant temperature air is emitted by this hand-held compact air bath gun useful in laboratory or industry. The gun, regulated by a solid state mechanism, provides controlled temperatures between 100 and 600 degrees F. at any pre-set point, making possible tube shrinking, drying of materials and component testing without the danger of damaging the product or surrounding parts.
