pushing desalination

Only one book club lets you keep up comfortably with the whole spectrum of science and save on the books you want

With so many advances in so many scientific disciplines, how does one get the total picture? By letting The Library of Science search out hundreds of manuscripts, seek through dozens of technical journals, to discover and offer only the books of highest interest and significance. Each month, our editors select and offer you the most important books covering the broad spectrum of science. The savings in time are enormous. The savings in money range up to 40%. Free bonus books, too. Add our present introductory offer—and can you think of a good excuse for not joining now?
