it's the Coleman Model 295 Spectrophotometer

Coleman introduces a precise, reliable analytical instrument with a removable top that lets you teach, and your students learn the principles of spectrophotometry. The Coleman 295 sets a new standard for science teaching.

The new Model 295 has a lift-off top case which permits you to display the self-contained power supply, study the printed circuit board, demonstrate the optical bench. You can dramatically show and explain to your students exactly why and how the instrument functions.

You can demonstrate easily because all operating components are accessible and easy to remove and replace. You can even operate the Model 295 with the top off!

Then, put the top back on and you're ready to perform all the spectrophotometric analyses you want... showing your students exactly what to do and how to use a spectrophotometer. Simplicity of operation is one of the most attractive advantages of this rugged, solid-state instrument. It has a large, 5½" wide meter scale for easy readability, 35 nm constant bandpass, fine echelette diffraction grating, and 400 to 700 nm wavelength range. Model 295 can be precisely calibrated in less than a minute.

The new Model 295 accommodates 15 kinds of Coleman macro and micro cuvettes and the Coleman Vacuvette™ Assembly (a complete system for rapid sample handling).

Best of all... Coleman's Model 295 is priced at a remarkably low $295—there is no other instrument available for teaching spectrochemistry anywhere else today with all these features. This great new instrument is in a class by itself.
