

*a new discovery**

the blood sucking moth of malaya

Not all moths are innocuous nectar eaters. In Malaya there is a species that lives on blood, like mosquitoes and tsetse flies do. But unlike dipterous "vampires", the moth has a blood-drilling mechanism that is unique in the entire insect world, enabling it to pierce the hide of deer, antelope and tapir! In his fascinating article in FAUNA, the Swiss entomologist who discovered the blood sucking moth carefully traces its evolution, explains its feeding habits, and fully describes its unique structure for the first time ever published. And his vivid illustrations, including close-up photographs, are superb. But the blood sucking moth is just one of the exciting new discoveries reported in FAUNA. There are many more in every bimonthly issue.

FAUNA itself is new—a new magazine and a new concept: it is both a scientific journal and a popular magazine. It brings you the latest discoveries reported by the very research people who make them. FAUNA's authors and editors are exclusively professional zoologists. They relate new information about familiar animals...they introduce you to animals you never even heard of before. All articles in FAUNA are written in depth, but in non-technical terms. Readable, stimulating, but not superficial, they reveal a thorough picture covering all aspects of wild animal life—behavior, ecology, physiology, habits, distribution and evolution. And illustrations, many in full color, are the finest imaginable.

FAUNA's purpose...to bridge the wide gap between the specialized technical journals and the popularized nature magazines. FAUNA is different from any periodical published. And it is as exciting as it sounds for everyone seriously interested in wildlife.

*The new discovery? It's in FAUNA's first issue. Blood sucking moths and a variety of intriguing animals await you there. And more discoveries are coming. Order your Charter Subscription and discover for yourself the entire fascinating world of FAUNA.

FAUNA
the zoological magazine

FAUNA / the zoological magazine

P.O. Box 895 Rancho Mirage, California 92270

YES, I want to receive the finest wildlife magazine ever published. Please enter my Charter Subscription to FAUNA, published bimonthly, to begin with the first issue (January 1971)*. Subscription rates, $9 per year.

Check enclosed

Send me a bill

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

*If ordered by November 10th, 1970. Outside U.S. or Canada add $2 extra for postage. Special Student Rate, $6 per year, U.S. and Canada. To qualify you must be enrolled full-time and state the name of your school and class with order. Please enter GIFT SUBSCRIPTIONS on a separate sheet. Tell us from whom to sign Gift Cards and include your own name and address with order.

Make Your Own Peace

You can say anything you want about the world. You can say it's beyond help. That man is more evil than good. That you never asked for the world you got. And you could be right. You can say anything you want about the Peace Corps. That it's just do-gooders. That it doesn't help peace. That it hasn't made any difference. The Peace Corps isn't disagreeing. That's not what it's about. The Peace Corps doesn't shout, "Come make peace." Peace doesn't come that easily. It's more of a separate peace. Maybe yours. No banners. No bands. No medals. The Peace Corps might be for you if you could enjoy feeding children. Or repairing a tractor. Or teaching birth control. Or building a schoolhouse. Even if no one ends up using it. (Don't think it hasn't happened.) The Peace Corps has no delusions of grandeur. Ask anyone who's been in it. But there are enough people who come out of the Peace Corps with things they've learned they can't forget. Good things. There are more ways than you can find to help the world. The Peace Corps is just one way. It's for someone who would rather do something. Anything. Instead of nothing. It could be your way. Write The Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

