THE LIMIT OF CRYOBIOLOGY

These new microscopes help students learn more because they do more... and they help you reduce instrument costs, too.

Bausch & Lomb will let you try one FREE in your school for 30 days to prove our point. Just look at these important advantages.

Academic SSM Stereoscopic Microscopes

- Produce lifelike 3-dimensional images over a wider field of view. 20X magnification is ideal for botanical, biological and geological studies.
- Feature an interchangeable stand that fits STZ Zooming Objective Microscopes . . . you save money.
- Provide comfortable viewing through binocular design, plus the versatility to examine a wide variety of specimens within a large 3" working distance.
- Are designed for both incident and transmitted light work.

Academic STZ Zooming Objective Microscopes

- Produce sharper, more definitive imagery because resolving power increases with the magnification.
- Improve student concentration and performance with continuously in-focus zooming throughout the entire 50X to 200X zoom range.
- Resolve many mitotic figures at 200X, the traditional test of a quality student microscope.
- Are designed for both incident and transmitted light work.

Academic HSM Microscope . . . rugged, student-proof design, precision optics and budget-stretching price help make it the ideal instrument for high school level science teaching programs.

FREE! BLUE RIBBON IDEAS FOR SCIENCE FAIRS.

Not every student can win a prize, but with this free kit from Kodak, more Science Fair exhibits can generate winning interest.

Our free kit (containing 9 different booklets) is crammed with ideas. It explains how to make photographs of biological specimens and mineral samples. How to take pictures through a microscope to get highly magnified details. How to bring presentations to life with photography.

Photography enables viewers to grasp details of color, texture, number, position and time sequence otherwise impossible, and adds credibility to reports.

Learn lots of ways students can use cameras to impress audiences (and judges), free. Just mail the coupon. (If someone beat you to it, send your request for C-211 to Eastman Kodak Company, Department 841, Rochester, N.Y. 14650.)
