MAKING PIONS FOR MEDICINE

The priceless gift of learning now has a price: $599. And a name: the Radio Shack TRS-80™ Microcomputer. And now, at last, your child has a chance to discover Tomorrow on Christmas morning.

"Tomorrow" is an electronic world, based on computers — and it's already here. In it your child can be a number in a machine, like a robot. Because he or she does not understand either the number or the machine. Or your child can be pleasurablely elevated into this brave new world with a gift that has only become affordable in recent months.

Quotes from Fascinated Customers

The Radio Shack personal computer surely ought to be on the gift list of every concerned parent, despite that $599 — though less than a moped — is costlier than an electric train. A father writes to tell us "this investment is one of the most significant in value to our family and to the future education of our child that we have ever seen."

A Californian, aged 12, writes to tell us that he's "too young to go to work for Radio Shack . . . but maybe we could work a deal where I could write some programs for you." An educator thanks us for "making possible the tapping of human innovation and creativity on an unprecedented scale."

Advice for Parents Who Care

In your lifetime the possibility of owning or giving a computer — up to now — was unthinkable. A computer? That can teach? Remember? Display on its own screen? Play games? Complete with a standard typewriter keyboard? Unthinkable — up to now.

But now the Tomorrow Machine is not only thinkable but practical, affordable and available at every Radio Shack store and participating dealer. The TRS-80 personal computer system? For the kids? For Christmas? Crazy? Like a fox!
