

A MESSAGE TO THE OVER FOUR THOUSAND PEOPLE WHO HAVE PURCHASED THE DICTIONARY OF MISINFORMATION

More Mis- information

A new collection of fables, fallacies and fictions from master debunker
Tom Burnam author of
The Dictionary of Misinformation

More Misinformation is a witty and provocative sequel
by the author of the Dictionary, Tom Burnam

In reading this helpful inventory of debunkery, you'll discover that:

- It was not gunpowder but the longbow that first destroyed the effectiveness of the armored and mounted knight.
- The "electric eel" is not a snake but a fish, and belongs to the carp family.
- Teepees and wigwams are not the same—a teepee is a conical tent, and a wigwam is a hut or dome-shaped wooden house.

• An elephant does not drink through its trunk. It sucks water into its trunk and squirts it into its mouth.

• The oldest seat of government in the U.S. is not in New England, but in Santa Fe, New Mexico, whose Governor's Palace was built in 1610, ten years before the Mayflower landed.

• It is not nicotine from cigarettes that stains fingers, but the combustion products of the paper and tobacco.
