Ancestral Voices: Language and Evolution of Human Consciousness — Curtis G. Smith. Attempts to bring together the current thinking in the fields of anthropology, linguistics, evolution and the neurosciences as it applies to the mystery of human origins. Focuses on one all-important step in our evolutionary history—the emergence of consciousness. Explores the question of the uniqueness of language and how much the human brain differs from those of other animals. P-H, 1985, 178 p., illus., $15.95, paper, $8.95.

Annual Review of Neuroscience, Vol. 8 — W. Maxwell Cowan et al., Eds. Covers topics ranging from developmental neurobiology to neuroscience technique. Annual Review, 1985, 603 p., illus., $27.

The Cambridge Guide to the Material World — Rodney Cotterill. A comprehensive picture of the world at the microscopic and atomic levels. A nonmathematical description of the physics, chemistry and biology of nature's materials. Covers inorganic materials, organic nonbiological materials and biological materials. Beautiful illustrations enhance the text. Cambridge U Pr, 1985, 352 p., color/b&w illus., $34.50.

Dreams of Amazonia — Roger D. Stone. A major ecological problem today is the eradication of the world's rain forests. Amazonia is the largest rain forest in the world and contains 10 percent of the planet's species. This book provides a historical overview of the region, describes the tropical ecosystem whose appearance and diversity mask its frailty and discusses recent scientific discoveries concerning the rain forest's delicate balance. Tells of the current changes in Amazonia and pleads for more careful development in this vanishing frontier. Viking Pr, 1985, 193 p., illus., $17.95.

Home Ground: A Gardener's Miscellany — Allen Lacy. Delightful essays for those who enjoy gardening and those who enjoy reading about it. Helpful sources and resources for the gardener are included in the appendix. Originally published in hardback by FS&G in 1984. Ballantine, 1985, 259 p., paper, $7.95.

McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Computers — Sybil P. Parker, Editor in Chief. Based on the McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Scientific and Technical Terms, 3rd ed., this reference work defines 7,700 terms useful to those who need a basic understanding of the vocabulary of computers. McGraw, 1985, 452 p., paper, $15.95.

McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Electrical and Electronic Engineering — Sybil P. Parker, Editor in Chief. Coverage is devoted to electricity, electromagnetism, electronics and solid-state physics. Entries based on the McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Scientific and Technical Terms, 3rd ed. McGraw, 1985, 488 p., paper, $15.95.

McGraw-Hill Dictionary of Mechanical and Design Engineering — Sybil P. Parker, Editor in Chief. Compiles some 6,700 definitions essential in such disciplines as aerospace engineering, control systems, mechanics, thermodynamics and fluid mechanics. McGraw, 1985, 387 p., paper, $15.95.

Macy Fellowships in Science Broadcast Journalism

WGBH-Boston, a major producer of broadcast programs, including NOVA, seeks six proven science writers with a strong record of published writing for a general audience. Successful applicants will be highly skilled journalists willing to risk their talents on a new career in broadcast science journalism.

In return for that commitment, WGBH will train Fellows for a year in the special skills of communicating science stories on radio and television. Training will be rigorous, and will require making programs for broadcast, in a working professional environment.

The Fellowships' second year will begin in January, 1986, and carries a stipend of $25,000. Applications must be received by July 1, 1985.

For details, please send a letter of interest and a resume to:

David Kuhn, Director
Macy Fellowships
