

The new game that can boost your SAT scores

COLLEGE PURSUIT™

Complete preparation, easy review, quick reinforcement

The purpose of College Pursuit is to make studying for the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SATs) a little easier, a lot more fun, and consequently, much more valuable to the player. It is not a substitute for a formal high school education but it can reinforce what you're learning in school, as well as help you measure your progress. College Pursuit explains why an answer is right, it shows you where to study harder or when to ask more questions of your teachers.

You can play College Pursuit alone, with one or two friends or in a large group. The basic game is played with 2 to 6 players, but there are other variations.

Reading Card 2

Read the following passage and answer your question on the basis of what is stated or implied.

Evil has nowhere else been portrayed with such mastery as in the character of Iago. Richard III, for example, beside being less subtly conceived, is a far greater figure and a less repellent. His physical deformity, separating him from other men, seems to offer some excuse for his egoism. In spite of his egoism, too, he appears to us more than a mere individual: he is the representative of his family, the Fury of the House of York. Nor is he so negative as Iago: he has strong passions, he has admirations, and his conscience disturbs him. There is the glory of power about him. Though an excellent actor, he prefers force to fraud, and in his world there is no general illusion as to his true nature.

"The Fury of the House of York" refers to

- (A) Iago
- (B) Richard III
- (C) A member of Richard III's family
- (D) A ghost
- (E) A pet

Reading Comprehension

(B) Richard III

The correct answer is (B). The word Fury is capitalized to make it a name or title, and the entire phrase is an appositive. A similar sentence construction would be: "David is a real menace, the terror of the whole neighborhood."

By Gary Larson

“Everything comes to me in one hideous moment.”
—Gary Larson

Things that live in a drop of water, and some of their furniture.

“Let's see — Mosquitos, gnats, flies, ants . . . What the? . . . Those jerks! We didn't order stink bugs on this thing!”

Over 600 comic panels plus 8 full-color mini-posters from Larson's The Far Side, Beyond The Far Side and In Search of The Far Side are brought together in one omnibus collection in The Far Side Gallery.

“Physicists, anthropologists, botanists all seem to feel that Larson's queer visions are drawn especially for them, that this land of talking amoebas and frogs with bad table manners is somehow familiar terrain. Single panels are taped behind Bunsen burners, to shelves full of chemicals, next to the electron microscope, by the rat chow.”
