

The Blood of Kings

By Linda Schele
and Mary Ellen Miller

Dynasty and Ritual in Maya Art

Photographs by Justin Kerr/Kimbell Art Museum

A social and historical framework for the architecture and objects produced by the ancient Maya. Previously lost to the obscurity of prehistory, these remarkable people have begun to emerge as genuine historical figures — with names, dates, whole lineages and a series of recorded actions — all thanks to the tremendous progress made since 1960 in deciphering Maya hieroglyphic script. It is now possible to show the Maya were real people, who lived, loved, hated, created, possessed and destroyed in a manner characteristic of human beings. A synthesis of new information about the Maya, who have been romanticized for many decades, is made possible through the combined cooperative efforts of scholars in many disciplines — archaeology, anthropology, epigraphy, comparative linguistics and art history. This new picture of the Maya inevitably raises the questions of their origin and place in the history of world “culture.”

— from the foreword

“Blood was the mortar of ancient Maya life,” as the authors of this unique volume assure us. Such a statement, based upon the soundest of scholarship, would have been unthinkable 25 years ago. A virtual revolution has taken place in the last quarter century in our knowledge of the ancient New World’s most advanced, sophisticated and subtle civilization, a revolution that reaches its culmination and most definitive statement in The Blood of Kings.”

— from the preface

George Braziller, 1986, 10" x 10",
320 pages, hardcover, $45.00

Science News Books
1719 N Street, NW
Washington, DC 20036

Please send _____ copy(ies) of The Blood of Kings. I include a check payable to Science News Books for $45.00 plus $1.00 handling (total $46.00) for each copy. Domestic orders only.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

RB631

THUMB YOUR WAY AROUND THE WORLD.

You could go around the world (the hard way) and never come across an Atlas like the Hammond Gold Medallion.

For openers, it's the only published Atlas with thumb indexing—so you open to the area you want without flipping through pages you don't want.

Then this Atlas practically takes you by the hand to the exact location you're looking for. Because wherever there's a map, they've put an index. (Of course, there's a huge master index in the back.)

It's as easy as using a dictionary—and there are more facts and figures inside than there are words in a dictionary. On everything from politics, economics and culture to rainfall and average temperatures.

Not to mention 650 colorful maps, charts and graphs. And a U.S. History, a World History and a Bible History Atlas also between its covers.

What's more, this is 1st class travel (and a 1st class gift). The Gold Medallion is in bonded leather, brilliantly gilded all around and covered with a clear plastic jacket—to protect it through all the years of good use it will get.

12½" × 9¾" × 2", 644 pages, hardcover, $49.95

Science News Books,
1719 N St., NW, Washington, DC 20036

Please send _____ copy(ies) of The World Atlas.
I include a check payable to Science News Books for $49.95 plus $1.00 handling (total $50.95) for each copy. Domestic orders only.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

RB630