Basic Requirements — Entrants must be high school seniors during the 1990-91 school year. Primary emphasis is placed on a written report of an independent research project in the physical sciences, behavioral and social sciences, engineering, mathematics, or biological sciences (excluding live vertebrate experimentation). The research project must be the work of a single individual. Group projects are not eligible. An Entry Form, designed to elicit evidence of creativity and interest in science, is also required, along with an official high school transcript, available standardized test scores, and statements and recommendations from teachers and/or supervising scientists.

Winners Selection — Three hundred semifinalists are selected from entries received (usually about 1,500) after careful evaluation by a team of 20 evaluators and judges specializing in a variety of scientific disciplines. Forty finalists are then selected from the semifinalists and invited to Washington, D.C., for final judging by a board of eight distinguished scientists.

The Rewards — Three hundred semifinalists benefit in the following ways: (1) recommendations to colleges and universities for admission and financial assistance, (2) certificates of achievement for students and teachers, (3) a sense of accomplishment and a measure of self-esteem that comes from finishing a difficult assignment. The forty finalists, selected from the semifinalists, are also awarded a trip to Washington for the five-day, all-expenses-paid Science Talent Institute for final judging and a chance to share $205,000 in scholarships.

Sponsors — Since its inception in 1942, the Science Talent Search has been funded by Westinghouse Electric Corporation and administered by Science Service, a Washington-based nonprofit organization.
