A 400-count representation of a woman's face as seen on the monitor oscilloscope. Subjects can correctly identify stimulus patterns at this level of complexity.

What is consciousness? How did it evolve? Do animals have it, too? Find out with the 4-volume Frontiers of the Mind Library, a $97.40 value, yours for only $2.95.

Consciousness Explained

Daniel C. Dennett

Probe a fascinating current theory of consciousness in this important and controversial work, which abandons such traditions as the dualism of mind and body and replaces them with a radically new model. Pub. Price: $24.95

"A remarkable meditation on consciousness." — Howard Gardner

The Rediscovery of the Mind

John R. Searle

Challenge the deepest assumptions of cognitive science in this brilliant work. You'll explore a controversial theory of consciousness and its relation to our scientific world view. And you'll discover a new approach to the study of mind. Pub. Price: $22.50

The Runaway Brain:

The Evolution of Human Uniqueness

Christopher Wills
Reconsider the development of the human mind in light of a compelling new evolutionary force: the process of cultural evolution. This extraordinary volume tells why Homo sapiens has not yet arrived at "full humanity" — and why our evolutionary path may be headed toward extinction. Pub. Price: $25.00

Animal Minds

Donald R. Griffin

Do animals actually think? Weigh startling new evidence presented in dozens of intriguing case studies. Participate in the quest to understand animal mentality — and learn why it is one of man's supreme scientific challenges. Pub. Price: $24.95
