BIOCHEMISTRY

Robert H. Abeles, Perry A. Frey
and William P. Jencks

"This is the book I've been waiting for."

— Jack F. Kirsch,
University of California, Berkeley

Learn exactly how metabolism works, why biological macro-molecules have specific structures and how living cells carry out vital functions. This is the first coherent picture of the entire field based on the fewest possible chemical principles. Illustrated with 550 electron micrograph images, diagrams, graphs and biochemical models.

838 pages. Publisher's price: $58.75

THE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE

Martin Olomucki

Discover how new applications from astrophysics and thermodynamics have radically altered the accepted concept of a spontaneous chemistry of life. Follow as researchers reconstitute the mechanism that formed the very first large macro-molecules — and primordial genetic information.

131 pages. Publisher's price: $9.95

THE LANGUAGE OF THE CELL

Claude Kordon

Journey to the very core of a single cell to witness a microcosm's vast communications network buzzing with regulatory messages of incredible precision. This fascinating book shows how scientists cracked the coded alphabet of the cell, and what manipulation of the code may hold for the future.

THE REALM OF MOLECULES

Raymond Daudel

One of the world's leading experts in quantum chemistry offers the first nontechnical introduction to quantum processes in living tissue. You'll see how quantum mechanics specifically affects chemical reaction and intermolecular forces in DNA, proteins, nucleic acids and membrane receptors.
