"I have to tell you that I've learned more useful astronomy from your product in a few months than I did in all my time in the classroom. Thank you for enriching my life."

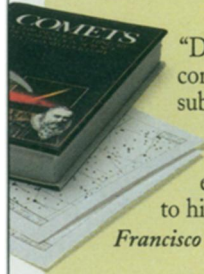

Leslie Kinton, Guelph, Ontario

Natural Astronomy.

From ancient eclipses to future comet collisions, explore space and time with the most comprehensive dynamic model of the sky and solar system ever created.

"Dance has an enormous appeal, because it combines rigorous modeling criteria with a subtle, intuitive approach to dynamic orbital configurations. Please, keep up this kind of work. It is an encouraging example of commitment to high standards in scientific software..."

Francisco N. Laprida, Buenos Aires, Argentina

Lawns now blanket thirty million acres of the United States, but until the late nineteenth century few Americans had any desire for a front lawn, much less access to seeds for growing one. In her comprehensive history of this uniquely American obsession, Virginia Scott Jenkins traces the origin of the front lawn aesthetic, the development of the lawn-care industry, its environmental impact, and modern as well as historic alternatives to lawn mania. —from Smithsonian Institution Press

"Fascinating. Jenkins has produced an exposé of the first order. Readers of this thoroughly researched book will be surprised to learn to what extent Americans have been seduced by such unlikely bedfellows as the Garden Clubs of America, the U.S. Golf Association, and even the U.S. Department of Agriculture to invest in a landscape aesthetic that is attainable only at great cost to themselves and to the environment. Jenkins brings us a message of hope: If the 'green velvety carpet' we so unwisely treasure is a cultural creation, we are free to replace it with the more realistic, luxuriant—and certainly more beautiful—alternatives she suggests."

—Sara B. Stein, author of Noah's Garden
