If he's ever asked questions like:

What does glass contain?

How do you build a beam balance?

What is a concave lens?

What are optical illusions?

What is magnetism?

What happens during crystallization?

How is paper made?

What is a hologram?

Science* Things of Science is a monthly "science
lesson in a kit", designed to inform and entertain; to provide serious students with a constructive pastime that makes learning the adventure it should be!
Each kit is a complete
lesson containing a text describing numerous experiments plus the ACTUAL MATERIALS TO BE USED IN PERFORMING THE EXPERI-MENTS.

Established almost 30 years ago, Things of Science has covered a broad range of subjects including: Glass, Measurement, Holograms, Vision, Magnets, Crystallization, Papermaking, and many other titles.

SCIENCE TEACHERS! Things of Science has proved its usefulness in hundreds of classrooms. Order this unique program for your
