Professional scientists in universities and industry, science teachers and students and science-minded laymen alike . . . depend on Science News. It gives them what no other magazine can: a quick, weekly overview of the world of science and its applications. From biology to meteorology, oceanography to the medical sciences, high energy physics to the social and behavioral sciences, Science News' staff on five continents is covering the meetings and the literature, interviewing the scientists and visiting the labs. Their reports provide quick and concise, substantive analyses of the events making science news, in the context that makes them significant.

Why not send a gift subscription to someone you know who would especially enjoy receiving such a practical and provocative present? Simply fill out the coupon and mail it to us. We'll take care of the rest.
