Learn how to take over our business.

Students get a lot of help in this direction at General Motors Institute in Flint, Michigan. Along with the chance to earn a bachelor's degree in engineering (electrical, industrial, or mechanical) or industrial administration.

If a high school senior meets the requirements, he or she is sponsored at GMI by one of the 140 participating GM units. During the next four and one-half years, he alternately spends six weeks on the campus and six weeks working at his sponsoring plant. Money earned while working usually covers most, if not all, college expenses. During the last semester of the fifth year, he combines full-time employment with work on a special project and the preparation of a thesis. And there are instances where students in the top ten percent of their class can go on for an all-expense-paid master's degree.

General Motors, or any other business, large or small, depends upon the talents, experience, and training of the people working for it. General Motors Institute, celebrating its 50th Anniversary this year, has offered the right kind of preparation for many GM engineers and managers. Positions in General Motors currently held by GMI graduates include President, Executive Vice President, General Manager, Chief Engineer, Plant Manager, Project Engineer, and many others.

This Year—Give

Things of Science

*It brings a year of pleasure . . .
a year of scientific experiments . . .
a year of adventurous learning . . .
to any youngster from 10 to 16*

THINGS OF SCIENCE kits (a new one is delivered to the recipient each month for 12 months) bring the principles of physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics . . . the fascination of industrial materials . . . to the young person who receives your subscription-gift.

Recent kits, for example, have covered:

Aerodynamics • The Sundial • Holography
Sound • Glass • Crystal Growth
Soilless Gardening • Probability

And each kit brings the enjoyment of learning by doing, as well as an invitation to further learning.

Use the special coupon below to give one year of THINGS OF SCIENCE (12 kits throughout the year) for only $9.50.

There is no more rewarding gift for a science-minded youngster than the THINGS OF SCIENCE kit he'll receive every month throughout the year.

Each kit is self-contained, scientifically accurate, with its own information leaflet, suggested experiments and all necessary materials.

THINGS OF SCIENCE kits on a wide range of subjects are designed for a happy adventure (as it should be) and a learning experience at the same time.
